

The Weekly Bulletin

26th January 2021

Today I am going to start my Headteacher's update writing to you as a mother. Last week was tough. Week 3 in Lockdown and as a parent I have felt the strain. The Government has decided schools should set a certain amount of work and keeping up with it is a challenge. I know that many of you have been juggling your own jobs, children's school work and just trying to generally survive. Times are tough and the cold weather isn't helping, our mental health is taking a battering. So, I am going to say it again WELL DONE! Whatever your personal circumstances, we think you are doing a great job!

If you are having IT issues please contact us, we are doing our best to support everyone.

If your child is sick and is not well enough to access the Google Classroom/ Tapestry can you please let the office know. It really helps us.

A reminder that the office is open 8:30-13:00 Mon- Friday. If you have a child in school and it is an emergency please email headteacher@lenham.kent.sch.uk.

Spaces in school

I'm sure you have seen in the news that more critical workers have taken up spaces in schools compared to last time. This is the case for us. We have significantly more children in school than last time (first lockdown 6%, now 32%). This is why finding spaces for critical workers enquiring now is incredibly hard, as we must review risk assessments to keep the children and staff COVID safe. Can I say a BIG thank you to critical workers who are informing us of the days they need (if working shifts), it really helps us plan.

Elizabeth has been very busy baking and has recently made some delicious popcorn bites as well as some tasty dog biscuits. She is also very excited to have received a Blue Peter badge for an amazing poem she wrote titled 'My Greedy Schnazuer!'

(This is Elizabeth's third Blue Peter badge - she already has a sport badge and a music badge - and is hoping to add more over the next few years).
